Upon reporting to [] at 1800, 10 September 1958 it was found that Mission 6019 was already in film processing.

At approximately 1930 the [] convened a conference of the following persons to consolidate and make a matter of record the requirements of each service.

Resistance was met from [] and the USAF representatives to the Navy requirement for detailed shipping count, down to and including junks and sampans. It was held that such detail was not in the realm of an Immediate P.I. Report. More definitive instructions were requested. They were advised that the purpose of the Navy Liaison Officer was to council and assist the P.I.'s in each case, that specifics could not be detailed in a written requirement. It was explained that the Navy held that the earliest indications of possible hostile action would be evidenced by troop and supply movements by surface craft. Further, that the navy was requesting that the mission interval be reduced to 40 hours rather than the scheduled 10 days. After much discussion pro and con of the content of an IPIR as opposed to the intent of the [] plus the time element involved in getting the first report out, the navy liaison officer relaxed his requirements to that of military craft, cargo vessels, plus any undue concentrations of shipping.

The CDR further explained that SOP for [] would include processing of the film, printing of selected prints for P.I. study for the supplemental report, the printing and processing of a dupe positive film for retention within the unit for an unspecified time from which sanitized prints would be made. The original film could be held no longer than four days. The SOP further provided for a committee Alpha to rule on requests for sanitized prints. Said committee Alpha to be composed of representatives of each service and the Other Agency. The [] to be the Air Force representative and chairman. However, since the specific instructions for
